

GEORGE SPACK

As a young high school history teacher and basketball coach in the 1980s, George became increasingly concerned with the many negative influences that impacted his pupils. He felt that many of America's traditional values were under attack. Similarly, Kara, Brightway's founder also saw the moral confusion that plagued many of his students. When he contacted George in 1996 and explained his vision to help teens, he was thrilled and quickly volunteered to assist. George was also one of the "original four" called by Kara to help realize his dream for the Brightway Center. Over 20 years later the Brightway Center continues to provide help and hope to youth through a variety of programs. Kara's core belief remains true: Jesus is the light of the world!