

WHAT IF MY ONE IS...

MY CO-WORKER

- Work Together

Grab lunch regularly! Work on projects together! Leverage the time you are required to spend together! Simply said, be in relationship with your co-worker.

- Be Compassionately Curious

.What really gets them excited? What brings them joy? You can also learn about their struggles and their concerns, but it's equally important to understand what makes them happy. Look for ways to get to know the whole person.

- Focus on Jesus

Don't confuse issues with Jesus. Agreeing on politics isn't the same as following Jesus. Agreeing on a project isn't the same as following Jesus. Sharing a love of country, or a personal interest isn't the same as following Jesus. The closer you are to Jesus personally, the more intentionally you can live and speak to the difference that Jesus makes in the world.

- Allow For Differences

Differences of opinions and hard questions may come. When questions you don't know arise, do the work to find the answers together. Care enough to make this a priority to you. Finding the answers together will be an adventure in growing closer to Jesus for both of you!

Regardless of how your One responds to conversations about Jesus and your own faith, be committed to growing in friendship and caring for them as a person. If they disagree with you, don't ghost them. Continue to work with them and look for opportunities to cultivate a deeper friendship.
