High School Summer Trip in Our Own Words

My purpose this couple days has been to remind me who I am and who's I am. I am loved by everyone around me and nobody really cares what you do! Stop thinking what others think! You don't have to impress anyone it takes so much energy and is not worth it! Live your own life and a life praising JESUS!

Great Revival + adding to spiritual flame heading into college alone. Really got to evaluate myself + where I need to grow. Really got to let go of myself and care less what others think

Thank you for this trip. I was scared not knowing anyone or being unknown. But God Spoke into me that He knows me and He knew what was needed. This is the youth group I like to see. All my studies could never teach this. Truly great to be apart of. Thank you Ross and FRG for all the memories and what you taught me.

My Praise Drop is knowing that we don't have to climb the ladder to be perfect because Jesus climbed down it for us.

It's more about knowing you're never alone when you're going through tough times than never having tough times.

I think God's message to me this weekend was to learn how to fully accept him into my life. I never felt like I was fully invested in the christian life, and I felt uncomfortable in praise. After this weekend I have never felt closer to God and I want to take steps in my life to feel that all the time.

to not try to climb the ladder, to let go and be free from others judgement and continue to love others.

Be a light to others + stay steady in my faith. God shines through me.

I think the lord has spoke to me in many ways this past week. I think the lord / pastor has taught me + reminded me to not care what people think of me + just remember I am enough for him + that is all that matters.

My personal prayer drop was me realizing a lot of things about how I share my faith. I have been pushed to go out of my comfort zone. I have realize, that as a christian I represent God and I am a vessel, that some of my family members need. As megan said this week "what we do matters"
