Partnership

Here at Pinnacle, we want you to know that the moment you walk through the doors, you belong here and can consider this place your church home, no title needed. Since we don't have traditional membership, you won't be able to "join" the church as a "member" – but we hope you become fully engaged in the life of the church. Those who are fully engaged with us are considered our members.

How do I become fully engaged here?

We want to be a church where anyone can attend and can engage with God's purpose for their life. In order to be that kind of church, we need the help of those who share our passion for leading people into a growing relationship with Jesus Christ.

If you share that passion, or even if you simply love this place, you can fully engage in the life of the church by doing four things:

- Connecting in a group
- Serving Strategically
- Inviting others
- Giving Systematically

Why does Pinnacle not have traditional membership?

Traditionally, membership has been known to represent joining a church, calling it your church home, and/or taking the first step toward involvement and volunteering. Yet the word “membership” has also carried a lot of baggage and has become an unnecessary barrier to involvement for some of our attendees. Over the years, this has caused some misunderstandings and feelings of exclusivity, which conflicts with our desire to be a church where anyone can get involved and grow.

What if I need to move my membership letter from another church or need my membership letter from Pinnacle?

We can help with this please contact us for more information.

What About voting?

Anyone with existing membership status and everyone who has engaged fully at some point in the past years preceding the vote will be invited to participate in that specific vote. We vote once a year on budget.

What about leadership?

At a leadership level, it's important that we're all aligned regarding beliefs and accountability. Because we don't have traditional membership, we ask that anyone interested in entering into leadership meet specific prerequisites that help us know we're on the same page. Each leadership application will include questions around the person's spiritual background, leadership background, and, for many ministries, a certified background check.
