Elders' Newsletter

"I'm still at work." That's usually something we hear ourselves say or we hear spoken from our spouse or friend when work runs late. It's usually not good news and there is usually a very real "ugh" on our part when we hear it. Work, hard work, can be exhausting, no matter what it is, and when that work gets extended we groan. But for Christians there is Someone else who says "I'm still at work!" to us on a regular basis and it's meant to encourage us and give us strength. Please join us this weekend as we study the Book of Colossians and hear for ourselves how God is "still at work" in each one of us and doing a work, an eternal work, that we didn't initiate nor have the ability to maintain. But the God of all creation is still at work, wanting and willing to work His abundant and eternal life right into the middle of our chaotic and messy lives. We hope to see you there!
