Worthy of Praise

Why do we worship God? Have you ever stopped to ask yourself that question? We go to church and we sing songs, we put money in the offering plate, we take communion and we listen to sermons. But why? Is it for us? Is it for Him? Is it for someone else? The short answer... yes. It is all of those things, but mostly, it is none of those reasons. The main reason we praise God, the main reason we worship Him is simply because he is worthy. Now, what do we mean by worthy? Because he saved us? Well... yes, He's worthy of worship for that too, but that's not why He is worthy, it's just another reason.

Worshipping God isn't about evaluating or calculating His worthiness according to our own constraints or ideas. Worship God is about God and His worthiness. God is worthy to be praised simply because HE IS GOD. That's the original reason, but sometimes we forget that and start to apply His worthiness to things he has done for us rather than the fact that he simply deserves it because HE IS GOD.

If we don't start with that premise, then worship becomes optional in the difficult times and it becomes something extra to do when we feel good about how we're handling life during the good times. If we worship God because He is worthy and then we judge His worthiness by what he has done for us when we feel like he isn't doing anything in the moment or that we have been accomplishing things on our own we will not worship Him. We will honor ourselves. So, as we enter into a night of worship let us remember, we worship God not solely because of what He's done for us, but because of WHO HE IS. HE IS GOD. He is worthy of our praise.
