

Congratulations! You're now engaged! Now what do you do? In addition to planning your wedding, it's now time to start thinking about your marriage. Far too many of the 2.4 million couples who get married each year are not adequately prepared to make it work. At Zion, we are ready to help you get prepared for the greatest adventure of your life - your marriage.

Zion has put together a two day class (four-hours each day) that will not only help you get to know your future spouse better, but it will also help you to get to know yourself better too. Recent findings reveal that couples who go through pre-marital classes will have a 31 percent better chance of staying married than couples who do not.

The class is led by Shawn and Sara Puttmann and Brad and Michelle Watson, who between the two of them have over 45 years of marriage experience. You will not only learn from them, but also from your fellow class participants. The class is very relaxed and there is plenty of time for sharing and listening to others. There will be private time for just you and your future spouse to discuss your personal relationship. The class is filled with premium fuel for your marriage journey - including how to handle conflict, how to show love and respect to each other, financial advice, tips for better communication, determining your love language, and how to adapt to in-laws - this class will help fuel your relationship for the long haul.

Comments from past attendees:

"The class was really fun and very beneficial. We learned so much about each other and what it takes to make a successful marriage."

"I wasn't very excited to give up a whole weekend for this to be honest. But, when it was all over I was very glad I had."

"This is something we did that will be so beneficial to our marriage now and in the future."

How do I Sign Up?
