

Permission and Responsibility Form

Five Rules for Youth Trips:

1. Respect the leaders and their instructions.
2. Respect other people's property (including their stuff and their feelings).
3. Always travel in groups of 3 from our church.
4. No inappropriate PDA (which includes no boys go into girls' rooms and no girls go into boys' rooms).
5. Have fun! If you keep the first 4, the last one happens every time.

What happens if a student breaks the rules?

We all make mistakes, but choices have consequences. A violation of these rules will result in consequences that can include, but not be limited to, restricting the students' participation in activities and/or up to having the parents pick them up.

Why do these rules matter?

These rules help us keep boundaries that protect our students, our church, and the witness of our church in the community. Students (and adults) thrive when they know the boundaries.

Please read the below statement and sign if you agree to uphold these expectations.

I, _____, give permission for my student,
_____, to attend the _____ trip with Statesboro FUMC. I have filled out a parental release form for this calendar year and my information on that form is correct. I also understand that signing up for this trip obligates me to be financially responsible for my student's spot if they choose not to attend (family emergencies and illness are exceptions). Lastly, my student and I have read the the rules for this trip and understand that they must be followed.
