Paper Palm Branch Craft – Scissors Practice for Kids

This Palm Sunday craft requires an adult to cut out the general shape of the palm leaf, but children will enjoy getting to use scissors to make their own palm branches. This is a great activity to practice those fine motor muscles for scissors skills with your preschoolers.

Supplies

- Green construction paper
- Glue sticks
- Wooden craft sticks
- Kids' Scissors

Directions

- Cut palm branch shape from green construction paper. (See ours below – basically an oval with a little point on the end – it's totally fine to eye-ball it.)

Easiest thing to do is fold paper in half before cutting to make sure it's symmetrical. We used 1/2 sheet of construction paper per craft. You don't want them too big for your craft sticks. Use your craft sticks as a guide for what fits best.

Have children cut little slits around the perimeter of the leaf using child-safe scissors.

- Use glue stick to put glue onto the craft stick and stick on your palm leaf.

Once the glue dries, practice waving your palm branch.
