

A Guided Liturgy

Based on the “Ancient Text” of the Order for Holy Eucharist, and can be found in the Chapel Booklet.

An Introduction to the Liturgy

Our worship comes from a long tradition based in the Jewish synagogues, the Hebrew Temple, the stories and teachings of the New Testament (especially the book of Revelation) and the earliest worship practices of Christians that have endured through the centuries. Our worship is highly focused on togetherness, not the individual. On participation, not observation. So...it can feel strange, especially to late modern people swimming in our individualism and consumerism. But, in a sense, this strangeness is the point.

Our worship is rooted in the Gospel of the Kingdom of God. It tells a story. And that story confronts all other stories. Our worship is meant to reorient us to the fact that this is the only true story of the World. Let that sink in. All of us are surrounded by other stories in our daily lives that diminish or even contradict the Kingdom story. They define us as something other than our fundamental selves - worshippers loved and rescued by the gracious and all-powerful Creator of the Universe. So, since the earliest days, Christian worship told this one true story with its climax in the bread and the wine - which Jesus himself - God in the flesh - used to tell the story. Jesus took his own people, Israel's, story of deliverance in the Passover and fulfilled it in his own life, death and resurrection. These otherwise everyday elements Jesus chose are a sign of his presence. Something ordinary becomes powerful. Something humble becomes glorious. We receive Jesus, so that we can live by him and even offer his story to the world into which he has sent us. On Sundays, we are immersed again in the story that we easily forget. It washes over us again like the waters of baptism. It flows into our hearts and our minds like the best news after a forgettable or even frightening day. And that's the point.

So there are two indispensable aspects of Christian worship: Hearing God's Word, and Celebrating the Lord's Supper. Word and Sacrament. Other elements of worship prepare for or respond to Word and Sacrament. These are the primary ways the story is made clear to us. At Christ the Redeemer we have two expressions of this on Sunday morning, Worship Service I (below) and Worship Service II, which is a shortened version of this service with more singing.

Entering God's Presence

All standing

Procession

The Acclamation

Celebrant Blessed be God, the Father, the Son, and the Holy Spirit.

People And blessed be his kingdom, now and for ever. Amen.

Our worship begins with an Opening “Acclamation,” a blessing to acknowledge, welcome and honor the triune God. To acclaim him. God is most important. He is the first one addressed, in song and in proclamation. Many Anglicans make the sign of the cross upon themselves at these opening words... more on that later.

As we sing the Hymn in Procession, the ministers enter the church behind the processional cross, symbolizing that all of our lives are lived in the shadow of the cross. As the cross passes by, worshippers may bow their heads to show reverence for the symbol of Christ’s sacrifice and our salvation. This is another form of acclamation!

And given who we are in light of who we acclaim God to be right up front, we pray a prayer for purity before our holy God, which is at least 1200 years old.

The Collect for Purity

All pray

Almighty God, to you all hearts are open, all desires known, and from you no secrets are hid: Cleanse the thoughts of our hearts by the inspiration of your Holy Spirit, that we may perfectly love you, and worthily magnify your holy Name; through Christ our Lord. Amen.

The Summary of the Law

The Celebrant says

Hear what our Lord Jesus Christ says:

You shall love the Lord your God with all your heart and with all your soul and with all your mind. This is the first and great commandment. And the second is like it: You shall love your neighbor as yourself. On these two commandments depend all the Law and the Prophets.

Matthew 22:37-40

We say the Summary of the Law or even read the Decalogue (Ten Commandments) to remind us that there is and always has been a call upon the people of God to holiness - to be set apart in following the design of God for humanity. There are spiritual, moral and ethical demands upon us that, apart from Jesus, we simply cannot keep. But they are all kept - all fulfilled - in Jesus and by depending completely on him, we can live our lives responding to these commands. They are no longer an impossible weight, but a beautiful calling for which we are empowered. Dependence upon Jesus is where we start and end.

And so after hearing the Law we respond by expressing our dependence on Jesus.

We sing the Kyrie Eleison, which means “Lord Have Mercy On Us.”

Kyrie

Lord, have mercy.
Christ, have mercy.
Lord, have mercy

Hymn

Singing is essential to Christian worship. Here are just a few reasons we sing:

- (1) Music marks our most important events - it's an addition of beauty to our lives and our worship.
- (2) A quote attributed to St Augustine says "He who sings prays twice." Music helps us to more deeply and sincerely make words our own.
- (3) Music expresses unity by bringing together many different voices into a single rhythm and harmony.
- (4) Music makes words "stick." If the words are biblically sound, music helps us to bring them to mind throughout our lives.

The Collect of the Day

Celebrant The Lord be with you.

People And also with you.

Celebrant Let us pray.

The Celebrant prays the Collect.

People Amen.

Collects are concise prayers centered around the theme for the Sunday and prayed all around the world on this day. A collect is usually structured in this way:

- 1.) The address directs the prayer to the Father, perhaps in light of some particular attribute.
- 2.) The petition asks something of God.
- 3.) A reason or purpose is given for the petition.
- 4.) A conclusion directs the prayer through Christ, our mediator.
- 5.) The people add, "Amen," a Hebrew word meaning "truly," or "I agree," or "let it be so."

And then, we move to what we call The Lessons...

Only Christ can truly "open the Scriptures to us" as he did for the travelers to Emmaus in Luke 24.32. So the Holy Gospel has a special place among the readings, because it is the climax of the story of redemption. It is read in the midst of the people to symbolize the Incarnation - the Gospel came to us. When the Gospel is announced, many Anglicans trace the sign of the cross with their thumb on the forehead, on the lips, and over the heart, praying that the Gospel would fill our thoughts, speech, and hearts. Parishioners sometimes bow when saying "Glory to you, Lord Christ" and "Praise to you, Lord Christ."

Hearing God's Word

Old and New Testament Lessons

At the end of the lessons the reader says

The Word of the Lord.

People Thanks be to God.

Psalm

The Gospel

The Reader says

The Holy Gospel of our Lord Jesus Christ according to _____.

People Glory to you, Lord Christ.

After the Gospel, the Reader says

The Gospel of the Lord.

People Praise to you, Lord Christ.

Having encountered Christ in the readings, the Sermon helps us understand, reflect upon, and respond to his Word.

The Sermon

Now our Response to the Word begins: We've been admonished and encouraged by the Scriptures to turn again to Christ, so we confess three things through the Nicene Creed, the Prayers of the People, and the Confession: our faith in him alone, the needs which he alone can satisfy, and the sins which he alone can forgive.

The Nicene Creed comes from the first ecumenical council (a council of the whole, worldwide Church) in AD 325. It has been used in the liturgy since the 5th century and is structured around the Trinity.

We may also share stories during this time as a response of faith to God's word and work in our life.

Nicene Creed

All stand to recite the Nicene Creed, the Celebrant first saying

Let us confess our faith in the words of the Nicene Creed:

Celebrant and People

We believe in one God,
the Father, the Almighty,
maker of heaven and earth,
of all that is, visible and invisible.

We believe in one Lord, Jesus Christ,
the only-begotten Son of God,
eternally begotten of the Father,
God from God, Light from Light,
true God from true God,
begotten, not made,
of one Being with the Father;
through him all things were made.

For us and for our salvation he came down from heaven, was incarnate from the Holy Spirit and the Virgin Mary,

and was made man.
For our sake he was crucified under Pontius Pilate;
he suffered death and was buried.
On the third day he rose again in accordance with the Scriptures;
he ascended into heaven
and is seated at the right hand of the Father.
He will come again in glory to judge the living and the dead,
and his kingdom will have no end.

We believe in the Holy Spirit, the Lord, the giver of life, who proceeds from the Father and the Son, who with the Father and the Son is worshiped and glorified,
who has spoken through the prophets.
We believe in one holy catholic* and apostolic Church.
We acknowledge one baptism for the forgiveness of sins.
We look for the resurrection of the dead,
and the life of the world to come. Amen.

universal*

As God's people, we are his intercessors for the world. A priesthood praying for the world. Abraham Kuyper once rightly declared, "There is not a square inch in the whole domain of our human existence over which Christ, who is Sovereign over all, does not cry, Mine!" When we understand this, then we can pray with bold faith over all things, great and small. These prayers are an invitation to the whole gathering to participate and pray together. It might seem a little awkward at times that anyone can pray, but it's worth it. Life is messy. And prayer is, too. For centuries, the Church has used the burning of incense to symbolize the prayers of the saints rising to God. This was a priestly symbol in Israel's tabernacle and temple, but is also mentioned 3 times in John's Revelation. The Psalmist prayed, "Let my prayer be counted as incense before you, and the lifting up of my hands as the evening sacrifice!" (141). You may smell that incense today or even have noticed a light smoke in the air. That's a symbol of our prayers.

The Prayers of the People

After each petition the reader will say

Lord, in your mercy:
People Hear our prayer.

As the Word reveals sinfulness in our lives, we respond with confession and repentance. The priest is authorized by the Church to be a mouthpiece for forgiveness - to exercise the power to apply God's forgiveness to our sins, a power first given to the apostles in John 20.23. This is called Absolution: the Church speaking with Christ's authority to comfort us with the assurance of his forgiveness.

The Confession and Absolution of Sin

The Celebrant says

Let us humbly confess our sins to Almighty God.

Silence

All kneel as able and pray

Most merciful God,
we confess that we have sinned against you
in thought, word and deed,

by what we have done, and by what we have left undone.
We have not loved you with our whole heart;
we have not loved our neighbors as ourselves.
We are truly sorry and we humbly repent.
For the sake of your Son Jesus Christ, have mercy on us and forgive us;
that we may delight in your will, and walk in your ways,
to the glory of your Name. Amen.

The Celebrant stands and says

Almighty God, our heavenly Father, who in his great mercy has promised forgiveness of sins to all those who sincerely repent and with true faith turn to him, have mercy upon you, pardon and deliver you from all your sins, confirm and strengthen you in all goodness, and bring you to everlasting life; through Jesus Christ our Lord. Amen.

And then the Comfortable Words were included by Bishop Thomas Cranmer in the earliest liturgy following the Reformation to remind and encourage people who had lived in perpetual guilt until that time they are truly free and forgiven when they confess.

The Comfortable Words

The Celebrant may then say one or more of the following sentences, first saying

Hear the Word of God to all who truly turn to him.

Come to me, all who labor and are heavy laden, and I will give you rest.

Matthew 11:28

God so loved the world, that he gave his only-begotten Son, that whoever believes in him should not perish but have eternal life.

John 3:16

The saying is trustworthy and deserving of full acceptance, that Christ Jesus came into the world to save sinners.

1 Timothy 1:15

If anyone sins, we have an advocate with the Father, Jesus Christ the righteous. He is the propitiation for our sins, and not for ours only but also for the sins of the whole world.

1 John 2:1-2

Having received Christ's forgiveness, we are reconciled not only to God, but also to one another.

The Peace affirms our essential unity as we prepare to come to the table. As Jesus said in Matthew 5:23-24, "So if you are offering your gift at the altar and there remember that your brother has something against you, leave your gift there before the altar and go. First be reconciled to your brother, and then come and offer your gift."

The Peace

All standing

Celebrant The Peace of the Lord be always with you.

People And also with you.

Please pick up nursery age children; older children are sent back to their parents at this time.

Offering and Announcements

After the offering is received the Celebrant may say

People All things come from you, O Lord,
And of your own have we given you.

There are a couple of important symbols to notice as we move to the Table, which is the climax of our worship - where we are welcomed by Jesus. There are two candles on either side that represent the dual nature of Jesus - both God and man.

At this point, our worship is shaped by Christ's action in Luke 24:30, which Paul recalls in 1 Corinthians: he took bread, blessed it, and gave it to them.

Generally the offering is brought up right before communion, sometimes along with the bread and wine - like an offering themselves that we bring to Christ to bless, much like the disciples prepared the elements and setting for the Passover. It's all a gift of our ordinary that he makes his extraordinary. Because Jesus offering of himself was perfect, all our offerings come to him and through him in thanksgiving. So our gifts are transformed through thanksgiving. The bread and wine as well as our monetary offerings are basic things that become elements of the Gospel and Kingdom, blessed by the King and used for his glory and our good. This is the strongest reason why we give tithes and offerings. We want to see the transformation of our resources into the means by which the kingdom comes on Earth.

Celebrating the Lord's Supper

The Sursum Corda

All standing. The Celebrant says

People Is the Father with us?
He is.

Celebrant Is Christ among us?
People He is.

Celebrant Is the Spirit here?
People He is.

Celebrant This is our God.
People Father, Son, and Holy Spirit.

Celebrant We are His people.
People We are redeemed.

Celebrant Lift up your hearts.
People We lift them to the Lord.

Celebrant Let us give thanks to the Lord our God
People It is right to give him thanks and praise.

The Sursum Corda, which means "hearts lifted." By the Holy Spirit our hearts are lifted to the throne room of heaven where Christ is seated. The Sursum Corda appears in liturgies since at least the 3rd century. The version we use is from the Anglican Church of Kenya.

The Celebrant continues

It is right, our duty and our joy, always and everywhere to give thanks to you, Father Almighty, Creator of heaven and earth.

Here a Proper Preface may be said

Therefore we praise you, joining our voices with Angels and Archangels and with all the company of heaven, who forever sing this hymn to proclaim the glory of your Name:

The Sanctus

Holy, Holy, Holy, Lord God of power and might, heaven and earth are full of your glory.

Hosanna in the highest.

Blessed is he who comes in the name of the Lord.

Hosanna in the highest.

Now that that the Holy Spirit has lifted our hearts to heaven we sing with all the saints and angels the song that is sung unceasingly before the presence of God in heaven. (Revelation 4)

We also sing the Benedictus, originates with Jesus' entry into Jerusalem in Matthew 21:9. Because it is only by the name of Jesus that enter the heavenly throne room. At the words "blessed is he..." many Anglicans make the sign of the cross over themselves, reminding ourselves that we enter "in Christ" marked as his own.

A word about crossing ourselves: Many Anglicans make the sign of the cross as a tangible way to mark ourselves as belonging to Christ. Its a profession of faith and even a sign that we are setting ourselves - or even something or someone else - apart for God in this moment. It's a physical prayer, not a superstitious expression.

In the 4th century, Cyril of Jerusalem wrote, "Let us not be ashamed to profess the Crucified One; let us confidently seal our forehead with our fingers, let us make the sign of the cross on everything." In the 2nd century, Tertullian said, "At every forward step and movement, at every going in and out, when we put on our clothes and shoes, when we bathe, when we sit at the table, when we light the lamps, when on the couch, on a seat, and in all the ordinary actions of daily life, we trace the sign upon our foreheads."

The Prayer of Humble Access

All kneel as able and pray

We do not presume to come to this your table, O merciful Lord, trusting in our own righteousness,
but in your abundant and great mercies.

Apart from your grace, we are not worthy so much as to gather up the crumbs under your table;
but you are the same Lord, whose character is always to have mercy.

Grant us, therefore, gracious Lord, so to eat the flesh of your dear Son Jesus Christ, and to drink his blood, that our sinful bodies may be made clean by his body,
and our souls washed through his most precious blood, and that we may evermore dwell in him, and he in us. Amen.

The Prayer of Humble Access, written by Thomas Cranmer, alludes to Jesus' interaction with the Canaanite woman in Matthew 15. It is also in keeping with the humble response of all God's people when they are lifted into God's heavenly throne room. When lifted to heaven God's people fall down in humility in the presence of the Lord's holiness. (Isaiah 6, Revelation 1).

The Prayer of Consecration

All seated and the Celebrant continues

Holy and gracious Father: In your infinite love you made us for yourself; and when we had sinned against you and become subject to evil and death, you, in your mercy, sent your only Son into the world for our salvation. By the Holy Spirit and the Virgin Mary he became flesh and dwelt among us. In obedience to your will, he stretched out his arms upon the cross and offered himself once for all, that by his suffering and death we might be saved. By his resurrection he broke the bonds of death, trampling Hell and Satan under his feet. As our great high priest, he ascended to your right hand in glory, that we might come with confidence before the throne of grace.

The prayer commemorates the incarnation and mighty works of Christ for our salvation.

On the night that he was betrayed, our Lord Jesus Christ took bread; and when he had given thanks, he broke it, and gave it to his disciples, saying, "Take, eat; this is my Body which is given for you: Do this in remembrance of me."

Likewise, after supper, Jesus took the cup, and when he had given thanks, he gave it to them, saying, "Drink this, all of you; for this is my Blood of the New Covenant, which is shed for you, and for many, for the forgiveness of sins: Whenever you drink it, do this in remembrance of me."

"On the night that he was betrayed" begins what are called the Words of Institution. These words recall Jesus' instructions at the Last Supper, as well as his assurance that "this is my body" and "this is my blood."

"He took" is the first of Christ's acts. And then the second is, "He Blessed". We call this next movement the Eucharist or Great Thanksgiving. "Eucharist" is Latin for "thanksgiving." At this time, we give thanks to God for our creation, redemption, and adoption as children of God. Giving thanks transforms our offering: work becomes worship through gratitude, and bread and wine become the Sacrament - or sign - of Christ's body and blood.

Therefore we proclaim the mystery of faith:

All Christ has died.
Christ is risen.
Christ will come again.

Celebrant We are brothers and sisters through his blood

People We have died together
We will rise together
We will live together

Celebrant This is the feast of victory

People The Lamb who was slain has begun his reign. Alleluia.

We celebrate the memorial of our redemption, O Father, in this sacrifice of praise and thanksgiving, and we offer you these gifts.

Sanctify them by your Word and Holy Spirit to be for your people the Body and Blood of your Son Jesus Christ. Sanctify us also, that we may worthily receive this holy sacrament, and be made one body with him, so that he may dwell in us and we in him. And bring us with all your saints into the fullness of your heavenly kingdom, where we shall see our Lord face to face.

The epiclesis (or “invocation”) follows when the priest asks God to sanctify - to “bless,” “make holy,” or “set apart” - the bread and wine by his Holy Spirit, and also to sanctify us who receive the Sacrament.

All this we ask through your Son Jesus Christ: By him, and with him, and in him, in the unity of the Holy Spirit, all honor and glory is yours, Almighty Father, now and forever. Amen.

The prayer concludes with a doxology to the Holy Trinity - “By him, and with him and in him... And there’s an important response that we call the Great Amen, the people (loudly!) give their assent to these words of thanksgiving.

The Lord’s Prayer

The Celebrant then says

And now as our Savior Christ has taught us, we are bold to pray:

All pray

Our Father in heaven,
hallowed be your Name,
Your kingdom come,
your will be done,
on earth as it is in heaven.
Give us today our daily bread.
And forgive us our sins as we forgive those who sin against us.
Save us from the time of trial,
and deliver us from evil.
For the kingdom, the power,
and the glory are yours
now and for ever. Amen.

Before we receive Communion, we pray together the prayer that Christ himself gave us: The Lord’s Prayer. This prayer begins by looking to the Father in heaven and praising him for his glory, and continues by asking God to express his lordship on earth through provision, forgiveness, and protection from evil.

The Agnus Dei

Lamb of God You take away the sins of the world,
O have mercy on us; Lord have mercy on us,
Grant us peace Lord.

And then we make John the Baptist’s words in John 1:29 our prayer because we know that Communion is about Jesus’ sacrifice, not anything we could have done to deal with our sins against God. We needed a perfect sacrifice for our sins. The Son of God became that for us. We rely on his mercy, not any right we have or perceived quality in us. Once we have received mercy, peace is the result. Because peace with God and man is our need.

Communion

Facing the People, the Celebrant may say

The gifts of God for the people of God. Take them in remembrance that Christ died for you and feed on him in your hearts by faith, with thanksgiving.

or this

Behold the Lamb of God, behold him who takes away the sins of the world. Blessed are those who are invited to the marriage supper of the Lamb.

John 1:29, Revelation 19:9

And finally, He Gave. He took, he blessed, he broke and he gave his life to us in sacrifice. In doing so he gives life itself to us. He gives our offering of our lives back to us - forgiven, redeemed, healed and blessed. We have all we need in him. We feed on him as he said would be necessary. Apart from him we can do nothing. But with him the whole of life lived in the Kingdom opens up to us. This Sacrament in his body and blood is the touchable, tastable, expression of his presence and his enduring love. To touch and to taste ignites faith as together, we do just as he invited us to do. He is present to us here. And so we take...

Sending into the World

The Post Communion Prayer

After Communion, the Celebrant may say

Let us pray.

All pray

Heavenly Father,
we thank you for feeding us with the spiritual food of the most precious body and blood of your Son our Savior Jesus Christ; and for assuring us in these holy mysteries that we are living members of the body of your Son, and heirs of your eternal Kingdom.
And now Father, send us out to do the work you have given us to do, to love and serve you as faithful witnesses of Christ our Lord.
To him, to you, and to the Holy Spirit,
be honor and glory, now and forever. Amen.

In the Prayer after Communion, we thank God for imparting his gracious presence through the Sacrament, and we ask to be strengthened and sent out to work for his purposes in the world.

The Declaration (from the Anglican church of Kenya)

As we respond, we wave in a gesture of sending to the cross.

Celebrant All our problems
People We send to the cross of Christ

Celebrant All our difficulties
1. People We send to the cross of Christ

Celebrant All the Devil's works
People We send to the cross of Christ

Celebrant All our hopes
People We set on the risen Christ

At Christ the Redeemer, we use this declaration from the Anglican Church in Kenya as a reminder that we are a people that depend, not on our work, but on the finished work of Christ.

The Blessing

The order for the conclusion of our worship may be different from parish to parish, but the priest pronounces God's blessing upon us before we are sent out. This blessing can vary according to the season of the church year, as well.

Another Hymn in Procession follows, which is not so much a recession as a procession into the world! Just as the cross completed our gathering for worship on the front end, it now leads us from the church, to live out our Christian vocations in the world.

The Dismissal

The Celebrant may dismisses the people with these words

Let us go forth in the name of Christ.
People Thanks be to God. Alleluia, Alleluia.

or this

Go in peace to love and serve the Lord.
People Thanks be to God. Alleluia, Alleluia.

or this

Let us go forth into the world, rejoicing in the power of the Holy Spirit.
People Thanks be to God. Alleluia, Alleluia.

or this

Let us bless the Lord.
People Thanks be to God. Alleluia, Alleluia.

The "Alleluia, Alleluia" is omitted during lent.

Did you know? The liturgy is sometimes called mass. That's because the word "mass," came from the Latin Ite, missa est, meaning "Go, it is the dismissal." The word "mission" comes from the same root. The church is not just dismissed, but sent out into the world. We conclude the service with a simple but profound response which is to shape our lives, now and forever: "Thanks be to God. Alleluia, Alleluia."
