Looking Forward

In last weeks newsletter I mentioned I was attending the opening of the Canterbury Art Show. That was wrong, as it is this week!

Work is continuing on the "Well Red" exhibition preparation and work has begun on a Future Nostalgia exhibition.

Mothers Day is not far away and now's the time to purchase some artwork or Red Bubble products to guarantee shipping before May 12.

On May 19, I might be painting a car parking space at a local shopping centre. I will submit my design later this week.

If there's a painting you like contact me direct, via email at trankers@bigpond.com, for a special subscribers discount of 20%. To view available work click here.

Awesome Artist of the week!!

James McLean

James and I met at the NGV a few months ago for the Escher exhibition. We regularly chat online about ideas and encourage each other.

James has the most amazing imagination and visualises how I wish I could. His portraits are very colourful and abstract. I just love how he uses colour. His medium of choice is mostly copic markers. Checkout his work on instagram here or facebook here.

Weekly Watch

My submission to the St Kevins Art Show was not accepted and I did not make it to the final selection of the Fitzroy Art Prize.

On Wednesday, Leslie, (to be featured next week), and myself visited the Mc Clelland Sculptural Park after dropping my work at Art Red Hill. The photo to the left was our favourite installations in the park. Click here to view the video.

Early in the week I received a free pack of Spirax note pads and sketch pads as well as Artline pens. In return I am now posting regular photos and videos of the products. Click here to see one of those videos.

Our favourite sculpture.
