Looking Forward

About 3 months ago I created a FB group exclusive to Melbourne and Victorian Artists. With over 200 members the community is growing faster than I expected. The reason for the group was that I felt there was a lack of support from one another having discovered that many weren't even aware they lived near other artists. So far we have had about 5 meetups, from gallery visits to coffee at a café. This week we are having our first creative meetup at the Botanical Gardens in the city. I've really enjoyed the meetups thus far and its great getting to know so many Victorian/Melbourne artists.

I'm still waiting to hear if I've been accepted in the Emerging Artists Award at Fortyfive downstairs. Hoping to receive news within the next few days.

Last week I entered my designs for the Melbourne Tram Art competition. Now I have to wait until late June to hear the results. See image below.

Weekly Watch

On Sunday I met Sara and Corrie who have both featured in previous Mixes. We are collaborating on a small project where each of us is painting our own interpretation of a location at Finns Reserve in Templestowe Lower. We all have very different styles, and use different mediums, so it will be fascinating to see all three pieces together. Stay tuned for outcome.

Early in the week I attended a free class to increase my knowledge on social media, in particular, instagram. It was held at the Maroondah Federation Estate. There are so many free community classes and events available if you know where to look.

On Thursday I met, Kimberley, a friend and member of my FB art group. We had an appointment with the Manager of Fortyfive Downstairs regarding the exhibition I have initiated for the FB Group. If accepted it will be early next year.
