

Poker Alice by Liz Duckworth

Poker Alice (in Army Shirt and Hat) Deals a Game of Faro at Deadwood's Doys of '76 Celebrations. Several of the Men About the Table are Old-Time Characters of the Black Hills; the Bearded Man at the Extreme Right is Grass-hopper Jim, a Noted Character of the the Bear Butte Region of the Black Hills. The Coatless Man, Opposite Poker Alice, is the Game's Case Keeper; at Her Right, With the Gun, is the Lookout, Whose Duty is to Watch and Pay Bets. Saturday Evening Post 1927

Will the Real Poker Alice please stand up? 1851 to 1930

Deadwood, South Dakota

Poker Alice Tubbs, a lady gambler, lived and played in mining boomtowns across Colorado, South Dakota, and the west. Her stories of adventure, risk, and reward take a fresh look at mining towns like Creede, Leadville, and Central City in Colorado, Silver City in New Mexico, and Sturgis and Deadwood in South Dakota.

Is that Poker Alice dealing behind that hat?

Visit www.parkcountyhistory.com for more information.

Liz Duckworth presents Poker Alice in first person to the Park County Historical Society

Saturday, September 28th, 2019, 6pm

Liz Duckworth brings Poker Alice's story to life — wearing Victorian costume and speaking in first person. Liz is the author of Poker Alice Tubbs: The Straight Story, a book that debunks myths and tells the truth about a legendary lady who smoked cigars and won her way in a man's world.

Liz Morton Duckworth is a freelance copywriter and editor and the author of several books including Wildflower Living (WaterBrook Press) and A Perfect Word for Every Occasion (Bethany House) as well as three children's picture books. She has performed multiple times as Poker Alice Tubbs in Colorado Springs and Creede, Colorado and is a regular actress with Red Herring Productions. Having grown up in Colorado, she has long enjoyed a passion for western history. Her website offers a behind-the-scenes look at the world of Poker Alice: www.pokeralicehistory.com