I want to applaud our General Superintendent Doug Clay for the theme he selected for our bi-annual General Council in August of this year – Family, with an emphasis on the Assemblies of God, "We Are Family." Family has always been near and dear to my heart, but the highlight of the theme has stuck with me. Everywhere I go, I have found myself wondering if someone is a part of our AG family or even part of the family of God. Also, I have found myself waking up in the mornings with a song on my mind that was written by Bill Gather, "The Family of God." Most of us from my generation who grew up in church will remember it and can probably even sing a line or two.

The Scripture says in Romans 8:14-17, New King James Version, "For as many as are led by the Spirit of God, these are sons of God. For you did not receive the spirit of bondage again to fear, but you received the Spirit of adoption by whom we cry out, 'Abba, Father.' The Spirit Himself bears witness with our spirit that we are children of God, and if children, then heirs—heirs of God and joint heirs with Christ, if indeed we suffer with Him, that we may also be glorified together."

Several years ago, when our children were still in the home, I used to see myself as the pastor or shepherd of two church families. Both came with very important spiritual responsibilities. The first one God placed in my care to shepherd was the smaller one, my immediate family, which consisted of Dori, Billy, and Lindsey. I always believed, if I failed to be a good husband, father, and spiritual leader of my home, then how could I expect to be successful as a pastor to the church family that God had given me, and vice versa. The foundation of our family was built on God's Word and prayer. It was enforced with love, commitment, communication, appreciation, and time together (having fun).

Now that my children are grown and have their own families to care for and I'm no longer the lead pastor of a church congregation, family is still just as important to me now as it was then. My responsibilities are different, and my roles have changed. After serving in Alaska and developing relationships in our Network and State, I value more than ever before the Family of God in our great Network. I'm so thankful for the opportunity to be your Superintendent and lead the Alaska Assemblies of God Church Family. No family is perfect, and neither are we, but we have a very amazing Network family for which I am grateful. Since coming to Alaska almost 34 years ago, my love and appreciation for what we share as a Network family means so very much to me. This Advent season, Dori and I will be praying for each of you – believing that God will bless you, keep you and strengthen you and your family, as well as your church family. We love you and hope you have a wonderful Christmas!

Every year about this time, our family lovingly unpacks more than a few cherished Christmas decorations, that are by now really showing their age, or should I say our age! Heirlooms considered valuable treasures, not because they are worth a lot of money but priceless because they make us feel closer to the family member they originally belonged to. Every year we wince when unpacking a "treasured piece" that has been broken since we put it away the year before.

Our Family: Broken?

As pastors, we wince at the broken condition of the American Family. Attorney General William Barr said in a recent address, "The campaign to destroy the traditional moral order has brought with it immense suffering, wreckage, and misery."

God's Plan for Our Family is exactly the opposite of that! To our forefather Abraham and his Family, God declared, "I will bless those who bless you, And I will curse him who curses you; And in you, all the families of the earth shall be blessed" Gen. 12:3, NKJV (emphasis added).

Our Family: A Blessing!

God blessed Abraham and his family to be the carrier of God's blessing to the whole earth. As heirs of Abraham, our families carry that same weighty promise. The Apostle Paul said, "….we have this treasure in earthen vessels…" 2 Cor. 4:7a, NKJV.

Our Families pass to the next generation more than some breakable ornament, but unbreakable faith and eternal Biblical values. There is no greater gift and no greater expression of love that we can give to our family's next generation. "We have this certain hope like a strong, unbreakable anchor holding our souls to God himself…" Heb. 6:19a, TPT.

God's promises to David ring true to our families: "My mercy will stay with him forever. My promise to him is unbreakable" Ps. 89:28, GW.

May this priceless, unbreakable treasure that our 'family' possesses, bring you and yours a very Merry Christmas!

Some of the great pleasures that make my life continually better are the opportunities that come my way to express my love for my family members. The Brown family was privileged to spend a few days together earlier this year, just us, just family. It was a sweet time, praying with them, letting them know of my absolute support for them, resourcing them when needed, preparing and sharing meals together, and enjoying just being with them were great pleasures for me. These things (among the many ways a family is defined) are the special relationships and experiences I enjoy with the people who mean the most to me.

The same principle carries through in the “network family” that I am a part of. I love to pray with the members of this family when I am aware of a need they may have. I want them to succeed in their ministries because we are on the same team; they have my support. When resources are needed to advance the kingdom efforts of the members of this family, it is a pleasure to be able to partner and come alongside them and believe God is going to do something special through their faith expressed. The times we are afforded to be together through the events and ministry our network family provides are special times to grow and gain encouragement together. All of this becomes part of the extended family relationships that make life better.

We pray that through this season of the year and the year to come, all of our family relationships are valued more highly, love for each one expressed more clearly and effectively and that our mutual support for one another would always glorify and please the One who is the Father of us all!

Susan and I find ourselves in that time of life where our kids are grown and are moving on with God's plan for their lives. Family time feels even more precious, as we are not all living under the same roof. One joy we deeply appreciate is the expansion of our family. This past May, our son Judah married Danee Redfearn, and we couldn't be more pleased to welcome her to the family. She is a wonderful woman of God. We look forward to the continued expansion of our family in years to come.

My Mom and Dad met in Sitka, after both made the adventurous journey to Alaska, leaving their families and comfort zones behind. We didn't have any extended family living in Alaska, or anywhere close. However, we learned that friends can become family. Every Christmas, Thanksgiving, and countless other times, the Kesler family gathered with the Hirai and Ellingson families. The guys watched football, the ladies laughed and cooked, and the kids played. Those relationships continue over a lifetime. I'm so thankful that Mom and Dad expanded our family to include others, as my life is far richer as a result.

Being with family, or friends who are like family, is very life-giving. There is a sense of unconditional love and freedom to be who God has called you to be. Without judgment. Being in this environment helps us grow in a healthy manner. A void of those relationships has contributed significantly to the many broken lives we find in our society today.

Can we expand our family circle to include others? Whether you are a family of one or ten, find ways to expand your circle of love. It will be a blessing to those you include, and you will be surprised by the blessing it is to you.

WORDS OF BLESSING, HOPE, AND Faith

By Fay Niemann

Brushstrokes of orange and red highlighted the leaves on the trees in our backyard. As we walked arm-in-arm through the autumn splendor, mom, who was facing pancreatic cancer, got a far-away look in her eye. I could tell she was getting ready to say something important; she was thinking about the future and preparing one of those beautiful mentoring moments, a moment I would cherish for a lifetime. With sweetness in her voice, she whispered, “I love you, and I am so proud of you.” Then, as a potter fashions and forms clay, mom began to mold shape and mold my dreams for the future.

The Bible challenges those who are more mature to train and encourage those younger. Godly “elders” have the delight to engage others offering time-tested wisdom, insight, and thoughts. One biblical example of an older woman mentoring a younger woman can be seen in the conversation of Elizabeth and Mary found in the opening chapter of Luke.

Picture the scene. Elizabeth, with tummy bulging and arms outstretched, rushes out, shouting and bounding toward Mary. Mary, catching a glimpse of Elizabeth darting in her direction, immediately responds by stretching out her arms and running to greet her cousin. In a moment that seemed like an eternity, they embrace and kiss each other.

Notice the first words Elizabeth speaks. “Mary, you are blessed” (Luke 1:42). What impactful words those must have been to the ears of the newly-pregnant-virgin girl. Amid a very confusing time, Elizabeth’s words must have soothed Mary’s heart like a cup of fresh, spring water on a hot, dusty day. Led by the Holy Spirit, Elizabeth’s short pronouncement said, “Mary, you are not cursed with this child….You are highly favored. The child you are carrying is blessed by God.” How easy is that? Surely, each of us can simply acknowledge and speak an encouraging word to someone today.

Then, bringing hope into the conversation, Elizabeth identifies God’s purpose for Mary’s life by announcing, “(you are) the mother of my Lord” (Luke 1:43). Instantaneously, Elizabeth’s words silenced the condemnation, ridicule, and disdain hurled at Mary by family and friends. Unwrapping Elizabeth’s gift of hope, Mary believed the angel’s words and gained confidence in the vision of tomorrow.

Speaking hope into someone’s life is like adding fuel to a dying flame. Hope ignites the embers of dreams once thought possible, causing confidence in the future to be set ablaze.

Examining Elizabeth’s influence in Mary’s life, one discovers Elizabeth’s ability to season every word with faith. Mentors recognize faith is a crucial ingredient in achieving extraordinary things for God. For Mary, belief began to boil in her soul as Elizabeth asserted, “I believe in you. I believe in what God is doing in you. I am here for you. Keep going! You can do it! I am standing with you.” Mary responded to Elizabeth’s mentoring moment with melodies erupting from the depths of her heart, “My soul praises the Lord, and my spirit rejoices in God my Savior” (Luke 1:47).

Sitting beside the hospital bed as autumn’s harvest had now turned into winter’s stark reality, my mom spoke again, “…Don’t forget … fam…ily. Love you. Trust Jesus.” Then, my mentor left her mantle behind to meet her Master. Today, as we pick-up the mentoring mantle left behind by Elizabeth and others, let’s bring words of blessing, hope, and faith into every conversation. Who knows? Maybe your words will shape and encourage the next world-changer?

461 RESPONSE

The idea of a family began with Adam and Eve, along with all the descendants that followed after them. Being part of that generational continuum, we all must admit that there is no other group of people with whom we identify with more than our family and close blood relations. There is nothing our families can't accomplish when we stick together through the thick and thin of life's circumstances. No matter what comes our way, we will stand strong when we stand together.

There are also times that we use the same endearing term to describe the people with whom we work or volunteer and with whom we share a common resolve. I am glad to identify with such a family whom we call the Alaska Ministry Network. As members of the family, we share a desire to love, respect, and support one another as we work toward the common goal of sharing the love of Jesus with the world around us.

In recent articles I have focused on the 461 Response Community called the "Caring Community." The term "caring" describes the sum of the thoughts, feelings, and actions we experience as we strive to demonstrate how we genuinely care for the people around us. While much of belonging to a Caring Community has to do with those "we minister to" it also has much to do with those whom "we minister with." I look forward to sharing this holiday season "with you." And, not just the holiday season, but also to serving "with you" in the coming new year. There is much that can be accomplished for the kingdom as we serve "with" one another.

Wishing everyone a very Merry Christmas and prosperous New Year!

PASTORAL CARE

Several Sundays ago, I became aware of a shift during worship. I'm not sure how best to describe it, but we were standing before God united as a family. I also knew we were deeply connected spiritually, and our love for Jesus and one another transcended any differences we may have. Pastor Jeremy has been ministering on the importance of praying for and blessing others, then activating us during corporate prayer times. I wonder if this unity is just one of the benefits of his recent focus.

Of course, isn't that the Father's heart? He created family, He adopted us into His family, and He wants us to be one in Him as a family. Interestingly, the AKMN staff wasn't aware of any of this when they asked if I would write a prayer of blessing for The Journey this month. So, I am trusting God was behind the request, that He join my prayer with yours, and bring us into what He desires for us both individually and corporately.

Father – Thank you so much for our personal families, our church families, and our network family. Thank you that you bind us together in a way we could never do ourselves and that through that you pour out your love and care for us. Lord, please draw us close to you, cover us, and guard over us. Minister to each of us in just the way you know we need. I pray for greater life, healing, rest, strength, and courage. I pray for your favor to rest on each of us and that we would experience more of you and the joy of your presence. Bless us, and keep us, Lord. We love you, and we surrender ourselves again to you and to your will for our lives. In Jesus' name, Amen.

AKSOM

This year Alaska School of Ministry (AKOSM) and the Alaska Ministry Network hosted the ADSOM Leadership team and District School of Ministry (DSOM) leadership members that were able to join us for our two-day annual forum at the Alyeska Resort in Girdwood.

We have been a part of the DSOM movement for ten years, and we have developed some great relationships among the different team members from around the country. We have become family and look forward to seeing each other at this annual meeting. These are the people we interact with regularly that help make our DSOM's the best they can be as we serve our students by providing the best classes. We now have 36 DSOM's representing region across America.

Everyone loved Alaska, and many chose to take some vacation time and bring the family along for an extended visit. For the DSOMs, gathering once a year is all we can do, and just like family, we love the reunion that takes place each year.

May everyone have a Merry Christmas and Joyous and Prosperous New Year.

CHI ALPHA

Each fall Breakaway, our fall retreat, enables us to gather students involved in our discipleship communities from across the state. It is the culmination of the first phase of our discipleship process each fall: "Come & See" who Jesus is. For the first six weeks, our small group leaders and staff strategically seek to make new connections and share the hope and love of Christ with hundreds of students. This fall, more than 400 students participated in a Chi Alpha discipleship group. We are hard-pressed to meet someone who hasn't made a connection or friendship with our discipleship communities. At a pivotal point, our fall retreat transitions us into our second strategic phase of the year: "Come and Be" with Jesus. This fall, dozens have given their hearts to Christ, many for the first time, and now they are learning to "Come and Be" with Jesus.

Many churches in Alaska have financially invested in our Chi Alpha Training and Mobilization Center in Fairbanks. Over the past year, this structure quickly developed into a critical component of our ministry and training systems. It has truly become a training and sending center for our community. This year AK-XA has seven interns in training for full-time missions and ministry. Additionally, AK-XA graduates are serving in India, Russia, and rural Alaska while more are preparing to go to India, Korea, and Myanmar next year. God is not done though! This coming fall, AK-XA will add another layer of training specifically for "Marketplace Missions" in rural Alaska. This ministry growth means that we need to add more training space through an addition. A local contractor generously donated the foundation this fall to get us ready for construction this upcoming summer. With several teams already dedicated to bringing construction teams, we could use additional help. If you or your church are interested in more information, please contact Paul Burkhart at pauldburkhart@gmail.com or 907-602-5016.

MEN'S MINISTRIES

Greetings Alaska Ministry Network Men! I hope your fall season has been a blessed one. As we approach the holidays, I would like to encourage you and give you some thoughts to consider on what it takes to be a family man. I've spent some time over the last year reading through the book Play the Man by Mark Batterson. The main thought that I have taken away from the book is this: you can't play the man or be the man, in this case, a family man, without a vision and com-mitment. The family needs the man to help give direction, be flexible, inter-ruptible, available, and be the spiritual leader.

I've read some statistics on the family recently that are pretty staggering. If the mother and father both attend church regularly, 72 % of their children will be faithful church attenders as adults. If only the father attends regu-larly, 55% of children will remain faithful to adulthood. If only the mother attends regularly, that statistic falls to 15%. If neither parent attends regularly, only 6% of kids will attend church as adults. Faithful parents produce faithful children.

God's words concerning Abraham should teach us the importance of spiritual instruction in the home. "I have singled him out so that he will direct his sons and their families to keep the way of the LORD and do what is right and just" Gen. 18:19. Men, you set the standard to help your fami-ly keep the way of the Lord. I would not be where I'm at today without the direction and purpose my parents sowed into my life.

We are pastors, fathers, husbands, and sons, and we are followers of Jesus. However, we can get busy with the church and with the needs of church families, and some-times our own families can take a back seat. Men, I chal-lenge you, be faithful, talk to your kids and wives about the Lord and life issues, admit when you're wrong, and take time to build great memories with them. Your fami-ly is your greatest ministry.

WOMEN'S MINISTRIES

What a joy and privilege it was to host the Chosen Women's Conference, September 19-20, for the ladies of the Alaska Ministry Network! A beautiful family of 200 women from all around Alaska gathered and enjoyed a special time together!

During the weekend, ladies were cheerfully welcomed, blessed with gifts and prizes, and enjoyed an evening after party, a Women Ministers connect time and an afternoon paint class option. More importantly, the ladies experienced powerful times of worship and encountered the presence of the Holy Spirit in such a sweet and life-changing way in each service.

Crystal Martin was the conference speaker and she did an excellent job of articulating messages and ministry time emphasizing the Chosen theme. She also beautifully engaged and connected with the generation of women present and truly encouraged our ministry ladies.

Another highlight of the conference was the emphasis on missions. This year, we invested in the ten female Missionary Associates connected with the Alaska Ministry Network. Eight of these women serve in Alaska and two serve in strategic locations internationally. During the Friday evening service, ladies gave over $4,000 to these ten incredible women! The funds that were received were divided and given to the missionary women to utilize in a way that would be a blessing to them personally during this season.

My heart is so full as I pause to remember and thank the Lord for everyone who attend the Chosen Women's Conference and especially for the amazing women and men who graciously served so that others could receive. Also, a special thank you to Pastor Kent and MCA church for opening your facility to us for the conference venue.

I am very grateful to serve and to be a part of the Alaska Ministry Network family!

ALASKA HOME MISSIONS

Several years ago, I attended the grand opening of a box store with Danean and our daughter Dana and her girls. To help pass the time, my second to oldest granddaughter and I were playing the "hide and scare" game. You know, the one where she would hide among the racks of clothes and jump out to scare me when I came close. After a few minutes of playing, she ran around a clothing rack and disappeared. Following the pattern of our game, I started looking around, checking the clothing racks in our area, and calling out for her. However, this time was different; she didn't jump out and say, "boo!" As I continued searching, the pitch and intensity of my voice calling her name started rapidly changing. Danean and Dana had joined along in this frantic search as we called out to her, "you are not in trouble, but you need to come out right now." My growing sense of urgency quickly led to desperation as I could not locate my precious granddaughter in that crowded store. I responded as any grandad (DadDad) would do by running to the front of the store, blocking the front doors, and loudly announcing that "nobody was leaving this store until my granddaughter was found."

As you can imagine, this immediately caught the attention of everyone... especially the employees who called their store alert code over the radios and PA system. As they were attempting to calm and reassure this DadDad, Danean and Dana emerged carrying our granddaughter. Oh, the relief; she was found, safe, and secured.

This simple, little story illustrates the importance we place on the safety and well-being of our family members. My prayer is that every minister in our Network family would guard and protect each other with this same urgency and intensity.

YOUTH MINISTRIES

AKYC 2019 was a weekend we'll never forget as students responded to the presence of God. We had healings, students give their lives to Jesus, students, and leaders baptized in the Holy Spirit, and about 40 students and leaders say "Yes" to the call of God to be missionaries in Alaska and around the world. Our speakers and worship team did an incredible job being led by the Holy Spirit and leading us into an Awakening.

In several ways, we simplified this year while keeping our focus on pursuing the presence of God and not wavering from that. There is a hunger across Alaska in students to be awakened to ALL He has for them, and it showed at AKYC.

We also saw a record-breaking offering given by so many that have sacrificed so that people around the world can know Jesus. Over $45,000 came in during our STL offering, and with a matching gift, over $90k was given to impact our bush Africa through water wells. We have never seen giving like this and so many testimonies of how students gave sacrificially. This is so much more than just an offering, it's evidence that we are catching God's heart for the lost. It's a willingness to give beyond our means and do whatever it takes to see the lost come to Jesus.

STL update, AK has given over $100k to STL (Most Ever!!!), and with an additional $50k in a matching gift means we've seen just over $150,000 given to STL because of your generosity and sacrifice. Imagine how much more we can do as we spread the gospel.

The days and weeks after AKYC brought testimonies and even more of an impact on AK, as students took what God did at AKYC back to their churches and communities.

ROYAL RANGERS

We continue to rejoice as our Royal Rangers Outposts are expanding across our state, from Whale Pass to Wasilla, Homer, and Kenai.

In this edition of The Journey, I'd like to highlight Outpost 27 at Kenai New Life Church which is ministering on Wednesday nights to approximately thirty students. Richard Price and his team are doing a great job reaching the boys in and around Kenai and Soldotna. His wife, Trish, and her team are doing "Brave Hearts," which is Ranger materials designed for girls.

In October, Pastor Stephen Brown and Pastor Scott Phillips invited our training team to come and teach Ranger Basics and Ranger Essentials to their church Ranger and Brave Hearts leaders. Thank you to Art Braendel, Mark Vaughn, and Ray Campbell, who drove down with me to teach on Saturday, October 26. Ten leaders gathered for a day of training on a child's spiritual growth and development, the marks of a great leader, and teaching on various classroom lesson enhancements. There is high excitement and expectation as we watch this Outpost grow under the skillful leadership of Richard and his team. Thank you, Pastors Brown and Phillips for including Royal Rangers in your vision of reaching and keeping kids for Christ!

In 2020, we are planning to expand the places we use for camps, looking forward to training more leaders and moving forward in our Camp Braendel projects, which include creating a parking lot to allow better access for campers. If you have any questions regarding Rangers or if you need help starting an Outpost, please feel free to contact me at (907) 952-2905. For our RR Team to your home, we wish you a blessed season!

CHILDREN'S MINISTRY

It's a beautiful day in the neighborhood, a beautiful day for a neighbor, would you be mine? Could you be mine?

Many of us know the words of this song either from watching Mr. Rogers as a child or watching with our children. It reminds us of a slower, simpler time. Fred Rogers, a Presbyterian Minister, always tried to help kids understand the world, and even though some may not have known it, he was doing it from a Biblical perspective. His goal was to help children feel safe and know that they were loved and accepted. He wasn't afraid to tackle tough issues.

Kids growing up in our culture today are looking for the same love, acceptance, and guidance Mr. Rogers promoted in the 895 episodes of his show. Where can they find it? Hopefully, they have a family that loves and nurtures them. But if not, who better to give it than the church? The church is a place for families to thrive and grow spiritually and relationally. But, what about the kids whose families don't choose to attend church? Who will be a neighbor for them?

It is my belief that God has placed the church in a neighborhood to reach out to the children who so desperately want to be loved, accepted, and taught about spiritual things. We can be the family they need and want. We can't allow ourselves to make excuses for why we can't reach out. It's hard work to minister to kids today. Many children have complex problems. We can't allow those issues to deter us. Our God is the answer! He uses flawed, busy people to be His hands of love to them.

I have always wanted to have a neighbor just like you. I've always wanted to live in a neighborhood with you. So, let's make the most of this beautiful day. Since we're together, we might as well say. Could you be mine, would you be mine? Won't you be my neighbor?
